

ALEXANDRIA, VA.

TUESDAY, JUNE 11, 1872.

CLOSE OF THE SESSION OF CONGRESS .-There will be no extra session, although it was generally expected there would be one. Congress adjourned, sine die, last night about 9 o'clock. The Amendatory Enforcement act, which was tacked on by the Senate as a rider to the Sundry Civil Service Appropriation bill, was disposed of by a compromise which the third committee of conference succeeded in hitting upon. As passed by both Houses it provides that in any county or parish in any Congressional district where ten citizens of good standing shall make known to the Judge of the U. S. Circuit Court their desire to have the registration or election guarded and scrutinized, the Judge shail appoint two citizens of the election district or voting precinct of different political parties as Supervisors of Election. They are not to have any compensation, and are not to have power or authority to make arrests or to perform other duties except to be in the immediate presence of the officers holding the election, and to witness all the proceedings, including the counting of votes and the making the returns thereof. The Senate conceded to the House in bringing the amendment down to this point and then the Radical majority went for it solidly as a party measure.

THE BOAT RACE. - The race on the Thames river, in England, yesterday, between the fourpared crews of the Atalanta Club, of New York, and the London Rowing Club was easily won by the latter. The result is the subject of much rejoicing in England. Immense crowds were lookers on. It is said that the Americans were in reality beaten before the race was half over. The London men did not make any extraordinary time, their pull over the four miles being done in 21 minutes and 16 seconds.

In his acceptance of the Philadelphia nomination. Gen. Grant concludes with "the expression of a desire to see a speedy healing of all and then shot him in the back. The woman bitterness of feeling between sections, parties, or races of citizens, &c. These are very good words. But the reality is what is wanted. Unfortunately Gen. Grant's actions in bringing about such a state of things, have not corresponded with the "expression." He has gone with his party in every measure almost, which | House, that some of his very best and most | they have proposed, and which injured and op- amusing impersonations were rendered while pressed, and prevented "a healing of bitterness of feeling."

James Foote Johnson, of Bedford county, has announced himself as an "independent" candidate for Congress from that district. The Lynchburg Republican says :- "Whatever private or personal reasons may impel him to the course he has taken, the simple fact of his being a candidate in opposition to the regular Conservative nominee, will make him, to all intents and purposes, the candidate of the Radical party."

The last news from Mexico is to the effect that the "war" is turning against the Juarez Government. They recently recaptured Monterey, drove off the Federal troops sent to attack it, and forced them to retreat to Mier from whence they will probably be compelled to fall back all the way to Matamoras. Another siege of that city is iminent.

The Baltimore American publishes the statement made by one of the girls concerned in the Huston affair. We wish such things could, in their details, be left out of the newspapers. But it seems to be certain that the whole testimony will now be made public. The tide of by duplicity. "public feeling," it is said, runs against Huston, notwithstanding his acquittal.

The editorial excursion to the North, which has already been mentioned, will commence on the 15th inst. We wish that time and health would have permitted the writer of this to join in this excursion, to which he was politely invited, and which, we have no doubt, will be an interesting and agreeable one. About sixty have been invited.

is about arranging with the American Trading Company of Borneo for a site for a naval station to be located within the company's concession on the north end of Borneo, about the centre of the Eastern Archipelago, and that a commissioner will be dispatched to select the

The House Committee on appropriations has been granted leave to sit during the recess of information of your Government. Congress. They will meet some time in November, and will proceed at once to perfect the appropriation bills to be presented at the next session. The Senate Committee on Appropriations will meet at the same time.

We regret to see that among the bills which failed to pass Congress, at its last session, was out to reimburse the College of William and Mary, in Virginia, for property destroyed during the late war. This venerable institution deserved more favor. We hope yet to see its | the request of the British Government when | just claim recognized.

Senator Carpenter in his reply to the Massachusetts Senator, said: "That Sumner had such an idea of his own magnitude that he did mitted. The committee to inquire into the not know whether he was a part of the universe | charges against Senator Clayton, of Arkansas, or the universe was a part of him." This is a very good picture of the "Hon. Charles" "in

Mr. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, did not hesiamendment to the appropriation bill, and for their breach of faith. He was very severe upon them.

The was very severe upon the object of the hoods without exciting any comment.

The was very severe upon the bill and the bill regulating the construction of bridges over the Ohio. The House they dispersed without exciting any comment.

The was very severe upon to on it, and when a daughter was smoothed out and tied over that, in the form of the hoods worn by Catholic nuns when the many two thousand men were in line, and after they each other. They were married.

"My hate culminated when a daughter was they dispersed without exciting any comment."

The was very severe upon of the hoods worn by Catholic nuns when the many the object of the hoods worn by Catholic nuns when the bill and the bill regulation; also smoothed out and tied over that, in the form of the hoods worn by Catholic nuns when the many than the bill and the bill and the bill and the bill regulation; also smoothed out and tied over that, in the form of the hoods worn by Catholic nuns when the bill and the bil

P. CLARICES. State DISLASES PRODUCT CITEDLY AND THE CO.

detailement from

Washington is thinning rapidly. Immediate A Scene in the House of Representaly after the adjournment preparations were made on all hands to leave. Many people stood not upon the order of their going, but went at once.

Democratic State Conventions are to be held this week, in several of the States, at which tion at Baltimore, will be appointed.

Earl Granville was to have made a statement, vesterday, in the British House of Lords with regard to the negotiations for an amendment to the Treaty of Washington.

Nearly all the bills relating to the encouragement of American ship building, and financial matters, generally; failed to pass Congress at its late session.

It will be noticed that the session of Congress wound up yesterday with a "scene" in the House of Representatives.

The President and his family were to leave Washington, to-day, for Long Branch

NEWS OF THE DAY.

To show the very age and body of the Times'

An attempt was made to rob the county Treasurer's office at Crown Point, Iudiana, on Saturday night. A stranger entered the office at a late hour and requested the Treasurer to lock in the safe until Monday morning a small tin box, which he said contained a quantity of valuable jewelry. The request was complied with, and two hours later the watchman heard an explosion inside, and on going in saw and fired at a man creeping towards it. An investigation showed the box to have contained a torpedo ingeniously arranged to explode at a certain time. The explosion blew the safe open and impaired the walls of the vault in made a like demand in relation to Mr. Bingwhich the safe stood, but failed to open the door of the vault.

The N. Y. Times has the following: "Dr. Lanahan, in conversation yesterday, said that he was satisfied that his arrest was the result of a combination between Dr. Carlton, Dr. Curry, and Mr. Dupuy, who, he feels sure, induced Goodenough to swear out a warrant. Dr. Lanahan says he shall take no further steps in regard to the Book Concern, though he has been assured that no one-half of the frauds perpetrated in it have been disclosed; but he believes the Church has now received sufficient warning to take care of its own interests. The present Book Committee, he thinks, is composed of honest men, and he is contented to know that the fight has not been entirely in

In New York, yesterday, Carter J. Maggiori, an Italian painter, shot his wife, Caroline, aged 18, and her brotner, Lewis Marygraf, after an ineffectual attempt to effect a compromise with his wife, with whom he has at present a suit for divorce. Marygraf pursued the Italian to the steps of a police station received a ball under the right breast. Marygraf's wounds are slight. All the parties are at the hospital.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson, the celebrated comedian, has been suffering from an affection of the eyes for some time, and it was understood use of the gavel to prevent Mr. Morgan from Le Bocage, as the Landry plantation was called. shocking railroad accident had occurred in the upon a presence that was forbidden you? during his recent engagement at Ford's Opera | being heard. suffering intense pain. In consequence of his affliction Mr. Jefferson has been compelled to | ting them. give up his engagement in Philadelphia and temporarily withdraw from the stage for medical treatment. The suspicion that the steamship Fannie, which sailed from Baltimore last Thursday with a clearance for Turks Island, is bound on a Cuban filibustering expedition, is strengthened by the information that she was seen on Sunday off the New Jersey coast and reciving a cargo from other vessels, probably of arms and ammunition. The Fannie was followed to sea by a revenue cutter, but once out of the jurisdiction of our Government there could be no interference with her.

Thomas Williams died at his home, in Alleghany City, Pa., on Thursday last, in the sixy-sixth year of his age. In 1838 he was elected to Congress and served two terms. In 1864 he was elected to Congress in the twenty-third district, and served two terms. He was one of the managers on the part of the House of Representatives in the impeachment of Andrew Johnson.

One of the crew of the American schooner Euola, seized in Trinity bay, Canada, for violating the fishing laws, makes affidavit that the alleged violation was not done until the Canadian officers making the seizure had informed the captain that the treaty would now permit fishing inshore, thus entrapping the schooner

GENEVA ARBITRATION.-It is understood that the British Government has submitted to our Government the following proposition to postpone action of the Board of Arbitrators by a mutual request on the part of both Governments for an adjournment, viz:

SIR: It appears to her Majesty's Government, from a review of the correspondence between the two Governments, that an agreement on the supplemental article might probably be arrived at it sufficient time were given for discussion. If, therefore, the treaty is to be maintained, an adjournment of the meeting of the arbitrators from the 15th instant has become mill is in complete order and is capable of It is "reported" that the U. S. government absolutely necessary. With this view, I have the honor to propose that on the meeting of the arbitrators on that day a joint application shall be made for an adjournment for eight months. If the Government of the United States concurs in making an application for adjournment it is the intention of her Majesty's Government to deliver to the arbitrators on the 15th instant the summary of their argument under the fifth article of the Treaty of Washington, accompanied by a declaration, of which I have the honor to enclose you a copy for the

GRANVILLE. To which our Government returned, in substance, the following reply: If the British Government desires to make such an application as is set forth in the sketck of draft, it must be done by its agent alone, but we positively decline to be a party to any interference with the terms of the treaty without a new treaty stipulation. From the above it will be seen that our Government will leave the question of adjournment to the arbitrators themselves, whose decision will depend entirely on the reasonableness of presented. - Wash. Chron.

CONGRESS.-In the Senate yesterday the minority report of the committee which investigated the New York Custom House was submade a report exonerating him. Several amnesty bills were passed, among which was one embracing the name of Governor Vance, of North Carolina. In the House of Representatives Mr. Kelley advised the Republican side not to push the Enforcement amendment tate to arraign his party, yesterday, in the through. A bill was passed to abolish the years a resident of this city. House of Representatives, on account of their proceeding, in regard to the "Enforcement" amendment to the appropriation bill, and for

While the subject of the amendment to the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill-by the Enforcement law -was up before the House of Representatives, yesterday,

Mr. Bingham argued that there was nothing delegates to the National Democratic Conven- on the statute books, and he declared that the resistance to it on the pretence of unconstitutionality was the inauguration in this Lall of a treason as disreputable, as dishonorable, as un constitutional and as damning as that treason inaugurated twelve years ago by the bayonet. At this point there was much confusion in the hall, especially on the Democratic side.

Mr. Morgan, of Ohio, shouted at the top of his voice, "I brand the statement as a lie. Members on the Republican side shouted order, and above all rattled the gavel of the Speaker. exclaimed that it was a disgraceful lie, and no more than words.

man should make such an assertion against him and his colleagues, that no utterance was Jistinguishable

When order was partially restored Mr. Bingham continued his sentence - "and as treasonable as that other pretext"----

Mr. Morgan again shouted that it was a hameful calumny and-

But the disorder was so great, the cries of order so many and the fall of the gavel so heavy that what he said was heard but by a

Mr. Dawes, of Massachusetts, suggested to the Speaker that Mr. Morgan be taken into custody. The Speaker warned gentlemen who persist-hem into cust ody. Mr. Stevenson, of Ohio, demanded that Mr. Morgan's words be taken down, and Mr. Beck | borhood.

ham's remarks.

There was a pause while the Globe reporter wrote out his notes, during which the mem bers discussed the events of the last few min-

Mr. Bingham's remarks having been read, the Speaker decided that the language transcended the legitimate bounds of debate, and were not altogether in order.

Mr. Dawes moved that Mr. Bingham be al- said: owed to proceed in order, and the motion was Morgan's remarks. The Speaker said he had decided that his emarks were entirely out of order. Mr. Dawes said that Mr. Morgan's offence was not so much the words he used as in per isting in interrupting the debate.

Mr. Brooks, of New York, said Mr. Morgan was justified in the language he used. Mr. Stevenson, of Ohio, asked if there was no remedy to protect members from interruption and insult? Mr. Dawes suggested in reply that the and suffered? Speaker had the right to arrest any member who violated the rules, and he had no doubt but would arrest members who persist in viola-

The Speaker replied somewhat sharply that the Chair must be the judge of the mode in which he preserved the order of the House.

VIRGINIA NEWS

The Leesburg Washingtonian says: "The engineers to make the survey and location of the Piedmont and Potomac Railroad came up on Wednesday last, and will proceed on Mon day to their work. This improvement will be pushed forward rapidly, as it is a matter of great consequence to the Chesapeake and Ohio and we were glad to separate by mutual conoad, which is going forward rapidly to the Ohio river, to have, at as early a day as possible, connection with the seat of Government.

The Fredericksburg Herald says: "Harresting will commence in Stafford and Spotsylvania during the present week in exceptional but well filled, and the wheat reported as of

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, that great artery from the West, is being pushed forward with an energy that will insure its completion in October, unless something unforeseen, beyond the power of man to control, should

In Lynchburg on Friday John Floyd, a son of the late Benjamin Rush Floyd, and nephew of Gov. John B, Floyd, deceased, fell from a rope on which he was swinging, in a warehouse, and was seriously injured.

Mrs. Brockwell, of Richmond, has a family clock, which has been silent and inactive for nine months preceding last Friday, when, ary who had been so short a time in the counstrange to say, awaking from its sleep, it started off with vigor and precision.

The Manchester flour mills, have been sold for $65,000, to Thomas W. McCance. This turning out eight hundred barrels of flour daily. It is thought by some that there was a shock of earthquake felt last Tuesday night, in Hanover, Chesterfield, Albemarle, and some other

The Lloyd case, in Leesburg, will be tried at the August term of the Loudoun Circuit Court.

WASHINGTON ITEMS .- An excursion party on a visit to Glymont yesterday, were intruded upon by a party of "roughs; pistols were drawn and fired, and two of the roughs were wounded. A suit has been entered against Mr. Adolf Cluss, laying damages at $10,000, by Mr. J. H. Kueling. The plaintiff alleges that Cluss wrote a letter to Hunt & Williams, contractors for the erection of a School Building, in relation to the placing therein of electric clocks, in which he stated that if the work was done by plaintiff it would be a botch, whereby the plaintiff lost the contract. Yesterday morning, about six o'clock, a man named Frank Ritter, who was apparently bent on committing self-destruction, jumped into the canal at Twelfth street, and sunk in the mud and mire up to his neck. He was on the pint of strangulation, when he was hauled South Washington just now rejoices in an original domestic scandal, being no more or less than the elopment of E. Solomon, a married man, about thirty-five years of age, with a Miss Amelia Hirsch, a good-looking maiden of nineteen summers, and a cousin of his.

Mr. Francis Samuel Crutchett, an old and highly respected citizen of this city, died very suddenly on Saturday evening last of rheumatism, followed by spasms. He was 30 years of age, an Englishman by birth, but for several

The Rival Sisters.

CHAPTER I.

A BEAUTIFUL BUT DANGEROUS HEROINE.

Miss Cranston, a very accomplished woman. in this Senate amendment that was not already kept a female school near Blanton, a quiet town in New Jersey. This place had been selected by Mrs. Blake, the mother of one of the Rival Sisters, as her home, on account of the reputation of the school. Mrs. Blake made her advent in Blanton in the character of a widow who had recently lost her husband, and age, named Hester, who was placed with Miss Cranston as a pupil.

Hester Blake was a remarkable child.

Miss Cranston found her a curious study. "If she is not tempted, all may go well with her," thought the old lady; but if she is--" Mr. Morgan again sprung up excitedly and and the ominous shake of the head expressed

Mrs. Blake had fifteen hundred dollars a year, which she stated was derived from prop-Cries of "order, order," and the Speaker's erty in the South; but where it was situated. gavel, combined with the voices of Messrs. and in what place she had lived before she Bingham and Morgan, who were shouting at made her advent in Blanton, was a matter of the top of their voices, made such confusion | conjecture, No amount of pumping had been successful in extracting such information from either mother or daughter.

For a few years the stranger lived almost alone, for her friendless advent among them had not inspired her neighbors with much confidence in her antecedents; but as time went ou, she won upon the good opinion of those around her, and at the time my story opens, Mrs. Blake was received as a guest by he best families in the village.

People did not trust her, but they admired and pitied her; for they said "she is goodly to look at, and she has evidently been a sufferer in the battle of life." Ah! if they had known ed in violating the order of the House that he how, and under what circumstances that battle would direct the Sergeant at-Arms to take had been waged. I am inclined to think that the reputed widow would have found few friends or defenders in that straitlaced neigh-

The cottage occupied by Mrs. Blake stood about a mile from the town. It was a comfort-Mr. Dawes said the country would hold the able house, with a veranda in front, over Speaker responsible unless he caused the arrest | which flower vines were trained, and the large of members who violated the rules of the yard that surrounded it was shaded by elm-

She was now dreamily regarding her daughter, who stood in front of a mirror combing out a mass of black glistening hair.

The figure of the girl was modelled after that of her mother; there was the same per fection of outline; the same sinuous, elastic movement; but the faces were not alike. She suddenly turned, and facing her mother.

"The dull monotony of this place is becoming unendurable to me. I wish to see some-Mr. Stevenson called for a decision as to Mr. | thing of the world-I must see it, mother. With a sigh, Mrs. Blake said :

"Sit down on that low chair, and try to be quiet while I speak of things I had almost determined never to reveal to you. Hester sat down, and prepared to listen to what she had so long desired to know.

Mrs. Blake at length spoke: cast off by the man I adored?—why he was love, and utterly unscrupulous, he at once de-permitted to wrong me so bitterly as to bring termined to make any use which might be ne-loved her—and cower before her glance as you to his home another wife while I yet lived cessary of his newly acquired advantage to se- soon will shrink before that of the Omnipotent

"I must go back to my early life, and tell you of myself before I became the wife of ged to take tea with Mrs. Blake and her that he would do so.

Armand Landry. My father was a dissipated, daughter; but their it is not skeeper returned. The Speaker said he had attempted by the reckless man, who owned a small place near from the village with the intelligence that a have assumed for the purpose of intruding I was his only child. I was educated in a convicinity, and the Doctor had hastened off to Hagar Blake, you have been the curse of my Mr. Dawes said he hoped the Speaker would vent school in France, till I was nearly eighteen the assistance of the wounded. not resort to that mode of enforcing the rules, | years old. Then my aunt took me home, having already arranged a marriage for me. I against it, for Claude Beltot was young and > of plantation life. My father gave me twenty thousand francs as my dower, and Beltot expected to get much die, had requested that Hester should visit more from him. I think that prospect induced him to marry me, for I soon found that he was as indifferent to me as I was to him.

"Indifference soon merged into contempt on my side, and something like aversion on his. sent. I returned to Louisiana, and Beltot went

"When I came back to my early home I found my father living as recklessly as ever. house was Armand Landry. He was two years younger than I, for he had not completed his immense estates entailed upon the half-sister crops that are advanced. The heads are short | twentieth year when I first met him. He soon forsook the gaming table to linger near me, excellent quality. Mr. W. E. Bradley com- and I-well-I was mad enough to give him menced this (Monday) morning to harvest his the heart my husband had never tried to win. crop of wheat, which is reported to be a very I loved him to that degree that I thought life would be worthless unless it was shared with

> "Armand seemed devoted to me, but he never asked me to marry him. He knew that his pround old father would look with scorn on the daughter of such a man as my father was. "My father swore that Armand should yet be my husband, and for that purpose he obtained a divorce for me from Beltot. I was so infatuated that I cared little by what means

> Armand was to be ensuared, provided I became his wife. I entered into his plans, shameful as they were, and allowed myself to be united to a man who had been lured again to our house, and when incapable of acting for himself, was pronounced my husband by a missiontry that he knew nothing of the wrong he was to the house a few moments before the ceremony was performed, and left immediately af-

> "A time had been chosen when the elder andry was absent from home. I believed that Armand loved me as truly as I did him. "It was several weeks before he recovered all the natural energy of his mind, and I began fernal plot had been planned; but the sus once to fear that he would be permanently injured by the drug I had permitted to be administered to him. But the time came when dow, crept around where she could listen to he fully understood the position in which he all they said. She too, now, meant to have was placed, and then-such scenes as passed her profit out of the scheme, the secret of between us I cannot describe. He fiercely resented the part I had taken in entrapping him into a marriage that would be odious to his proud father, and declared that he could never forgive me.

"Vainly I tried all my powers of facination to enthrall him, and win forgiveness from him. "As soon as he was well enough to leave the house, he went off in search of his father, in spite of all I could do to detain him. His father instituted proceedings for a divorce, after sending Armand to Europe to make a tour. | for her. in company with Mr. Russell and his two daughters. "When I heard that, I was devoured with jealousy; for Ellinor Russell was the young Sister. lady who had been chosen by Mr. Landry for his son's wife, and report said that she was both rich and charming. I afterward learned he was betrothed to Miss Russell.

of, and little enough to do it with.

caused me so much woe! Many a night, after what the future life might bring to him. you were asleep, have I stolen from my cottage, he judged her hardly and cruelly at the and made my way to the stately home in last, she would have no mercy on him.

you, and in your childhood you were so much and in a faint voice said : alike that but for the difference in size you might have been taken for twins.

upon her, and there was no help for her.

The doctors said it was the climate that did not suit her, but I kew better than that. "She was taken away for change of air. but was one of the slaves that had belonged to my father, and was devoted to me. "Mrs. Landry lingered for many months. but she at last died, when you were five years

"The years passed on, and Armand was travelling in Europe, rarely writing home, and never sending me a line.

"You were ten years old when he came back. Zelma was dead, and I felt safe now that the only one who could accuse me of instigating the death of Ellinor Russell was gone. "But all my hopes were fearfully dashed to the earth; for he brought with him a young wife, a cousin of Ellipor's and also an heiress. They stopped in New Orleans, and from there Armand wrote to me the following lines: "NEW ORLEANS. October 30th, 18 -

"I write to you, Hagar, to say that no option will be allowed you as to your removal from the vicinity of me and mine.

"I came back to my native land, bringing with me a cousin of my lost one as my wile, the resemblance in person and character between the two attracting me irresistibly to

"I might have taken her to Le Bocage to meet the same terrible fate, had I not here encountered the priest who attended Zeima in her last illness and received her confession.

'Ah my heart, I cannot write it! "Go far away - take your daughter. "I am not rich in my own right, but when she is old enough to marry. I will give her a suitable dower. This is all I can or will do.

"ARMAND LANDRY." "I had nothing to do but obey Armand's command," continued Mrs. Blake, "and so I me back, and—and— I cannot tell you what came hither with you, where we have lived till she did in return for the forbearance I had now. This is my history.

CHAPTER II. A PHYSICIAN IN LOVE WITH THE DAUGHTER -

A FIENDISH PLOT. There was residing in the same village with Mrs. Blake and her daughter a physician, twenty-eight or thirty years of age - Dr. Macon-who for two years had been ardently in love with the daughter. She had toyed and triffed with him during all that time; but he had finally insisted upon a decided answer to his suit, and on that very evening he was coming to learn his fate. As he approached the house he overheard the voices of mother and cure the hand of Hestor. On that very evening Dr. Macon was enga-Armand Landry. My father was a dissipated, daughter; but their 11 housekeeper returned How dare you profane the sacred character you

Mrs. Blake and surprised her with the infor- by the presence of a murderess. was not consulted, but I did not rebel mation that among the hurt was Armand Landry, mortally injured! He was accompanied good looking, and I preferred remaining in by his daughter, the half sister of Hester, and France as his wife, to returning to the dullness she had been stunned by a blow on the head. They were both lying at a farm-house near by, and Mr. Landry, knowing that he must him the next morning that be might inform her of the pecuniary provision which he had made for her support. And now was concocted one of the most figurish plots ever devised by the human mind. We had evidently made a wretched mistake, It was suggested by Mrs. Blake, and acquiesced in by Dr. Macon and Hester, that the half-sister, who was still unconscious, should be kept in a state of imbecility by drugs which for that purpose, and Hester-whose resem-'Among the young men who came to his blance to her was so close as to defy detection-should usurp her place as heiress of the through her mother.

The inducement to Dr. Macon was Hester's promise, on the accomplishment of the scheme, to become his wife. But when Hester came to read over the letters which lay concealed in the bottom of her half-sister's trunk, she found among them several from Raymond De Lorme, a handsome young man whom she remembered as her own first lover at the South, when she was little more than a mere child. These letters were written in a most impassioned strain, and showed that between him and his fair correspondent-Estelle Landry, Hester's now strickisted. No sooner had Hester discovered this fact than her old love for De Lorme was rekindled. and she resolved at once to have him also, as well as Estelle's fortune. let whatever obstacles might be in the way. He was now absent in Europe, to remain a year or two, and her purpose must be most carefully concealed helping to carry into effect. He was brought from Dr. Macon; but, come what would, the en half-sister-a marriage engagement ex-

young man should yet be hers! Mrs. Blake's housekeeper. Mrs. Muller, a German woman with an American education, was a great gossip, and a cunning, selfish, evil-minded woman. Hester, at her mother's suggestion, had turned the key on the outside of Mrs. Muller's sleeping room, while their inpicions woman happened to be awake, and she had risen, and emerging through a winwhich she had obtained unknown to them.

On the following day Mr. Landry felt his end rapidly approaching. He had forbidden peremptorily that Mrs. Blake should be admited to his presence; but Mrs. Blake had determined to see him before he died. He was very anxious for a confessor; and was finally told that although there was no priest accessible, a Sister of Charity might be obtained .-This assurance affored him great relief, and he desired that no time might be lost in sending

Mrs. Blake determined to improve this opportunity to see him, without his recognizing her, and to visit him in the disguise of a

It was arranged that after night, when the room was dimly lighted by a single candle, she should go in and listen to such confessions as he wished to make. In them, if he spoke of "When this happened, you were but a few her tenderly, compassionately, she would foreweeks old, and I was left with you to take care go the dire vengeance she had planned to inflict on him when he lay helpless before her. "Ah! how I hated that fair beauty who had breathing his soul away in doubt and dread of in which that woman dweit, surrounded by When Eunice, a deaf and dumb servant girl loving care that of right belonged to me. Con- at the farm house, was safely asieep. Mrs Blake cealed in the shrubbery, I have listended to made such alteration in her dress as was nehis voice speaking to her in accents of deeper cessary. A white handkerchief was drawn low tenderness than he had ever used to me, and I down on her forehead, and folded over her face father's house of which you had been de- lighted room, and sat down in the chair which auded.

"Your half sister is two years younger than movement, the dying man unclosed his eyes

"How good you were to come to me in this extremity. This young girl has explained to "Armand's joy in his new treasure was soon me that you consented to do so as soon as you turned to sadness, for the health of his wife be heard that a son of Mother Church needed gan to fail. She faded slowly away with a my your help: but some sabile power must have sterious disease. Everything was tried that conveyed to him the knowledge that something promised relief, but the spell of an evil eye was inimical had approached him for he suddenly seemed to struggle with some deadly oppresion, and sinking back, he murmured: "Too late! I fear that I shall die before I can say what I wished. I must confess -must she brought with her a daughter ten years of Zelma, the woman that went with her as nurse, have absolution, for I have sinned. But I have suffered-how bitter a cup I have drained in atonement of the one act of my life which brought unhappiness to one who thought she had the right to avenge herself upon me.

In a voice searedy above a whisper, Mrs. Blake said: "My son, forgive as you hope to be forgiven.

and all will be well with you. "Ah! that is what I cannot do; for there is one sin and one sinner that I have not forgiven. But far that I could die in peace.'

"Was the wrong against you so unmerited that you feel thus bitterly? "Unmerited! Yes; I assert that, and I be lieve it. She who committed it was one I did not love, though I was tricked into a marriage with her. In a faltering voice Mrs. Blake said: "You did not love her! Are you quite sure of that? Landry was too deeply absorbed in his own thoughts to notice the menacing tone that thrided through the mufil-d voice of the speaker.

"No, I never loved her."

"Is it just to lay all the blame upon the woman who risked so much to gain a legal claim upon you? To those who have loved truly. much should be forgiven; and she, you say, loved you.

"I gave her all that she had a right to claim at my hands—and had she so willed it. I would have sent her from me as free from reproach as in the hour of our first unfortunate meeting. But she would not go. I was very young. loved the child she gave me, and through her the mother hoped, if I were free again, to win shown toward her. It is her secret, and I will not reveal it even in this hour, but it is that which I now find it impossible to forgive. It you can give me absolution, knowing that, I will accept it gladly at your hands, although you are not one of the accredited ministers of our Holy Church.

The heart of Mrs. Blake hardened as she listened. She felt the blood surging through her veins with fiery swiftness, and all the passion of her tropical nature burst forth.

She tore the shrouding folds from her head and face, and started to her feet, standing over him as a menacing fate, as she mockingly said "Such consolation as I can give, you are welhouse he overheard the voices of mother and come to, Armand Landry. Whether it will far daughter engaged in close conversation and cilitate your entrance to the Paradise in which drawing near to the window and meanly listyour lost Ellinor dwells, or into the Hades in tening he had obtained full possession of the which I shall hereafter claim you, I leave you You ask me how it happened that I was terrible secret of Mrs. Blake's life. Madly in to imagine. Look at the woman you east off

> Being who will judge between us. "You-you here!" he exclaimed, in a loud harsh voice. "How dare you approach me life, and in death you persecute me still. Go On the return of Dr. Macon be called upon I command you to leave this room unpolluted

Hagar's eyes blazed back defiance, and she tauntingly said:

"You are in no position now to enforce your will. You are in my power, not I in yours, and I intend to pay you back drop for drop, for all the bitterness you have poured into my cup and forced me to drink.

The features of Landry were blanched to the hue of death, and his black eyes gleamed fiercely from their pallid setting, as he hoarse-

"By whose comivance were you permitted to enter here? If Hester or her betrothed hus band aided you, it will be the worse for them. for in that case I will give her nothing. The paper I caused her to write this morning wat the Doctor should skillfully administer to her be valueless unless it is signed and witnessed and now I will do neither. "Oh, you threaten me with consequegess, do you?" she mockingly asked; "but let me assure you that it is a matter of indifference to me, and also to my daughter, whether that paper is valueless or not. We have settled our plans, and rave against them as you may. you will be powerless to prevent them from being carried into effect. Hester will not accept the paltry provision you have so magnanimously made for her; she will claim what is hers, in justice at least-the half of the estate which is now held by your other

"Woman! what do you mean by that? Ah! my God! have I fallen into a den of thieves? Is there no one to help me?" His voice broke suddenly, and he fell back tpon his pillow gasping for breath. "No one!" repeated Mrs. Blake, with stern emphasis. 'You are in this solitary country house, entirely at my mercy, and that of those who are willing to do all that I wish. The darling daughter on whom you have lavished so much indulgence lies stricken into idiocy by the injuries her head has received. She will never more walk the earth in pride, look ing down in scorn upon the sister whom you have bequeathed to her compassion. In place of that, I have decreed that the two shall change places, and the child of your adored Ellinor shall stay with me, while my daughter assumes the station of the heiress, and wears the honors of her father's house. The two sisters are so much alike that no one will ever be able to distinguish the true one from her

The listener felt that the shock of this announcement had shortened his brief span of life; he knew that the death clutch was already on his vitals; but he rallied his last remaining strength, and said, with solema em-

"If you consummate this wickedness, leave to you, and to the impostor who will take the place of my darling, my undying malediction. God is over all, and he will not permit such villainy to go unpunished, even in

Mrs. Blake unclosed her lips to reply, but Landry raised his hand appealingly, a change passed over his sunken face, and with a prayer on his lips in behalf of his favorite child he passed away.

Hester arrayed herself in a black dress which she found in Estelle's trunk, and assuming the name and character of her half sister. prepared, on the following day, to accompany the remains of her father to New Orleans, for burial, in company with Herbert Spencer, a young man from Boston, a consin of Raymond DeLorme's, who had been sent on by the family relations for that purpose. What happened there, and indeed the whole of the thrilling story of the rival half sisters. Hester and Estelle, will be found in the New York Ledger, which is now ready and can be had at all the book-stores and news depots. Ask for the number dated June 22, and in it you will get the continuation of the story from where it leaves